flourishing, and West Superior, which will be the metropolis of the new State, is considered finer in its possibilities than any other city of the Central

United States. The way in which Michigan came to have an upper peninsula and the manner in which it was divided is very interesting. Michigan was the thirteenth State admitted into the Union and came in by act of Congress in January, 1837. It extended further south than it now does and westward to the Missouri river, but owing to some political deal on its admission, a part of its southern border was cut off and given to Ohio. A strip had also been given to Indiana a few years before. After Michigan became fully settled as STATE TO BE CALLED SUPERIOR a State the Governor of Michigan made MANY a great fuss about these slices that had been cut off and so, to quiet him, what is now known as the Upper Peninsula was granted to him. This made a State that was separated by a great body of To be Taken from Michi- water, but notwithstanding this ob- Two stacle Michigan has always ruled both

Take Detroit, which New Man Talks on the Prospects has a mean annual temperature of 48 degrees, and that of Sault Ste Marie, which is 40 degrees. This is a difference of 8 degrees between the different parts of the State. Along the northern part there is a great deal of apple raising, but in the peninsula there are vineyards, and, of course, the same It is said in Washington, according agricultural laws cannot apply to both States Government proposes to make, a new State, to be called Superior, out of the upper peninsula of the State of Michigan. Grant Eldredge writes of the proposed new State as follows:

For many years, in fact, almost since its admission to the Union in 1837, Michigan has been divided by Lake Michigan. If you will look on the map to be in favor of losing their upper you will see that Michigan is cut in two a little more than midway to the north. Encouragement of Tourist Travel a Feature.

The managership of the Hawaiian Hotel will change today, when T. K. James, late chief steward of the O. S. S. Australia, and a man who has had many years of experience in the hotel business, will replace P. Lucas, while the latter, a trustworthy and most obliging man in every way, will have charge of the bar. Mr. James, in speaking of the matter to a reporter of this paper last night, said:

"When I came to Honolulu on the Australia it was with the intention of arranging, if possible, to place capital in the Hawaiian Hotel and of assuming the managership of it. I was not sure at first that I could come to the agreement in mind, but now everything has been arranged, my terms have met with cordial approval and I am here to stay as manager of the hotel. It is needless to say all the responsibilities of the managership of the hotel, as in other well-regulated places of the kind, will fall upon my shoulders, and no one, not excepting the other owners themselves, will have anything to say. This has been agreed upon in writing, and papers to that effect will be signed

I shall take up my quarters right in the hotel, or in a cottage connected therewith. In this way I shall be available at all times, and can see personally to anything that, in the course of events, might happen to go wrong. Having said this much in regard to what I intend to do, it might be well for you pers. to let the public know what changes are to be made. "There are great and small changes on foot, but the former will have to be left until the fall, when the tourist trade slackens, and people will not be put to inconvenience by tearing up and row at about 11 a. m. Saturday, after

"You have seen the fine hotels in the States? You are soon to have one here. New furniture will take the place of the old, and all things will wear a new aspect. Remember, however, that I want one point understood: The rates are to be raised and kept there. The public, both at home and abroad, is not to be deceived. We will give to our guests the very best, but they must expect to pay for it, just as they do in any other country. "The object is to get the trade back again and to coax tourists to this lovely place, with its unparalleled climate. or Three Stories They have been traveling into the Southern States and into Southern California. We want some of them to come out here, and they will, too, when once it is learned that a first-class hotel is in existence in Honolulu." Those who know Mr. James and the success he has achieved in the management of hotels, will know at once that he means to do just what he says. What a comfort it will be to the public to feel that there is really one place in Honolulu worthy the name of a first-class hotel. People who are in the habit of frequenting such places will make no protest against money paid out when they find that they are really getting the very best of everything. It is the paying out of money and receiving in exchange therefor something of an inferior quality that tests the good rature of such people. New blood has entered into the management and arrangement of Hawaiian Hotel affairs. Every person on the Islands who has Hawaii's best interests in mind must needs lend hearty support and encouragement to the new regime. Let Hawaii have a first-class hotel and people from abroad, when they have learned of it, will gather in to give the place life and to set more money into circulation. This is the opinion of those who are looking to see Honolulu possess first-class accommodations for tourists.

CRICKET ITEMS.

Match at Makiki, With Davies and Jordan, Captains.

A cricket match was played on Saturday last between scratch teams of nine a side, captained by Messrs. Clive Davies and R. W. Jordan, and resulted in a victory for the former by 46 runs to 43. An inspection of the score-book discloses as notable features of the game firstly, the introduction of some of the baseball element, Harry Wilder securing as many as 13 runs for his side; secondly, the bowling of Shilletoe, who captured 3 wickets in 10 overs -six of which were maidens-at the cost of 9 runs only, and thirdly, the performances of Tom Lishman and Dr. Murray, who carried their bats for 23 and 12 runs, respectively.

A regular match between the Honolulu Cricket Club and Messrs. T. H. Davies & Co.'s team is the next event on the program, and the date of same will be duly announced in all the pa-
